Architectural & Decorative Elements

This 4-foot wide replication of a church sanctuary's existing 100-year old plaster frieze work functions as decorative ornamentation for doorways within the church.

The organization's "all stars" are commemorated as placards arranged as permanent fixtures throughout the lobby and common area.

There are times when a display is simply an added feature for a structure or space. But there are also times when it is a purpose-designed and integral part of the environment. Bruce Fox is a design-and-build firm, so we can furnish unique solutions for an architectural aesthetic.
